READING PASSAGE: A Visit That Changed My Thinking

For several weeks, I had been feeling unusually tired. Even after a full night's sleep, I struggled to stay focused during the day. When my mom took me to the doctor, I felt nervous but curious. As I sat on the examination table, the doctor explained how my muscles, bones, and organs work together to keep my body healthy. He showed me an image of my heartbeat and described how exercise and good nutrition help the body function properly. By the end of the visit, I understood that taking care of my body was a responsibility I should not ignore. That experience changed the choices I make every day.
